Jae is a 22-year-old Entrepreneur in Nairobi. She runs a retail business where she gets chicken from upcountry and retails it to consumers in the city.

She needs to have a simple, secure and convenient way to save her returns from the business and ensure it is available readily when required for merchandise purchase every four days. She and her fellow business people organize a Chama that provides them with cash every time each of them is going for their merchandise, which in this case is after every four days.

ChamaFY will allow Jae to create their own Chama with remittances every four days of their desired amounts without the hustle of getting committed and disciplined members for the other slots.
